

Week 1 – Individual banded reading

Week 2

Chapter 5 of Harry Potter and the Philosopher Stone – Diagon Alley

Harry woke early the next morning. Although he could tell it was daylight, he kept his eyes shut tight. "It was a dream, he told himself firmly. "I dreamed a giant called Hagrid came to tell me I was going to a school for wizards. When I open my eyes I'll be at home in my cupboard." There was suddenly a loud tapping noise. It was Hagrid. It wasn't a dream at all.

Hagrid told Harry that they needed to go shopping for Harry's school supplies. They would need to visit Diagon Alley where you could buy all the things that witches and wizards would need. "What am I going to use to buy things with Hagrid," Harry asked. "Money," Hagrid replied, "from Gringotts bank, your parents left you lots of money Harry. You can use that".

Harry and Hagrid followed the secret passage way into Diagon Alley to collect the money from the bank and buy Harry's school equipment. They brought; Harry's school uniform, school books, stationary, a wand, cauldron, telescope, scales and an owl. Harry named the owl Hedwig.

Once they had brought the items that Harry needed, Hagrid took him to the train station to catch the train to Hogwarts. They needed to find platform nine and three-quarters. At King's Cross station in London, Harry searched for platform nine and three-quarters but he couldn't find it. There was nothing between platform nine and ten.

At that moment, Harry heard a family talking about platform nine and three-quarters. It was the Weasley family, they were wizards too. The family had four children; twins Fred and George, younger brother Ron and sister Ginny. It was Ron's first year at Hogwarts too, him and Harry would be good friends.

To get to platform nine and three-quarters Harry and Ron had to magically travel through the wall between platform nine and platform ten. They ran at the wall and came out the other side, noticing the beautiful train. They climbed on board and found a carriage to sit in. Inside was a young girl. Her name was Hermione Granger. The train steamed off towards Hogwarts as the three friends chatted and shared sweets between them. They were all very excited to be going to Hogwarts School of Witchcraft and Wizardry.

Once they arrived at the school, they had to be sorted into classes. "The four classes are called Gryffindor, Hufflepuff, Ravenclaw, and Slytherin. Each house has its own noble history and each has produced outstanding witches and wizards. While you are at Hogwarts, your triumphs will earn your house points, while any rule-breaking will lose house points. At the end of the year, the house with the most points is awarded the house cup, a great honour. I hope each of you will be a credit to whichever house becomes yours. The three friends were all sorted into Gryffindor.

Week 3

Finding Nemo

Nemo was a little clownfish who lived a quiet life with his dad, Marlin, on the Great Barrier Reef. Nemo longed for adventure but Marlin worried about the dangers in the ocean. He barely let Nemo out of his sight. On the first day of school, Marlin overheard Nemo and his new friends daring each other to swim out over a steep cliff.

"Come on Nemo, how far can you go?" his friends shouted.

Marlin panicked and said, "Nemo, you know you can't swim well." Nemo replied, "I can swim fine Dad! Okay?" Nemo darted up toward a boat on a surface. As Nemo swam, a diver appeared behind him. The diver pulled out a net and caught Nemo. Then, he returned to his boat and sped off, accidentally knocking one of his masks overboard. Marlin chased after the boat but it was too fast.

Marlin soon bumped into a blue tang fish named Dory who offered to help. "I've seen that boat and it went this way! Follow me!" Dory said. When Marlin followed, Dory whirled around. Marlin started following Dory when suddenly Dory said, "Stop following me!" On this, Marlin said, "You promised me to show the way where that boat went." Dory looked surprised then shook her head sadly and told him that she had been suffering from short-term memory loss.

Figuring Dory couldn't help him, Marlin turned to leave and found himself face to face with a shark. The shark invited Dory and Marlin to get together in an odd sunken ship. Inside the ship were two other sharks, and together they pledged, "Fish are friends, not food!" As they spoke, Marlin looked up and saw the diver's mask. Dory noticed some writing on the scrap. It might be a clue to help them in finding Nemo. Marlin and Dory quickly left the party carrying the mask.

Miles away, Nemo had been taken to a dentist's office. A goofy gang of tropical fish lived there. The fish and their friends Nigel, a pelican, passed the time by watching the dentist work. That night, Nemo learned that he would be given to Darla, the dentist's niece. The tank gang warned him that Darla's fish never lived for very long. Their leader Gill took charge and said, "We're going to help him escape!"

The next day, Darla came to collect her new fish Nemo. The dentist started to hand Nemo to Darla in a bag, but saw Nemo inside, belly up, pretending to be dead. The gang cheered and shouted, "He's going to get flushed down the toilet! He's going to get flushed out to sea!"

Outside, Marlin and Dory had made it to Sydney to try and find Nemo. Just then the toilet was flushed and Nemo travelled down the drains and out into sea to be greeted by Marlin and Dory. All three returned home.

Several weeks later, Nemo was ready for school again. This time, Marlin was ready too. He knew that his son could take care of himself. Nemo waved as he swam away. He swam back and hugged Marlin and said, "Love you, dad!" Marlin smiled and said, "Love you too, son!" Now go, have an adventure!

Week 4

Secret Life of Pets

Hi, my name is Mac. I'm the luckiest dog in the whole world. I live in New York City with my owner, Katie. She's the greatest. Katie and I have a love stronger than words... or even shoes. (And Katie has great taste in shoes!) It's me and Katie, Katie and me. Us against the world.

The only problem is that almost every day she leaves... but it's not so bad because I have other friends who live in the building. They're pets like me.

Gidget is my Pomeranian neighbour. Every day she asks me what my plans are and I always tell her I'm going to sit and wait for Katie. Gidget thinks my life is very exciting.

Chloe is a big grey cat that lives in my building. She's mostly interested in food and can't always be bothered to give advice. As soon as her owner leaves for the day she... EATS! (Perhaps a little too much).

Sweetpea is a bird who lives to dream big. When his owner is away Sweetpea flies into the DANGER ZONE!

Mel is a pug. He has a problem with squirrels. He barks to let them know to stay away... this is his territory!

Leonard is a poodle. He may act reserved when his owner is around... but once he leaves, Leonard likes to let loose and head bang to his heavy metal music.

My buddy, Buddy is a dachshund who loves being massaged so much that he's found a clever way to work out the kinks in his long back even when his owner isn't home.

Up there is poor, loveable Norman the guinea pig. He's always getting lost in the vents trying to find his way back to his apartment.

And then there's Pops. Don't worry about the wheels... this old basset hound gets along fine. Since his owner is never home, everyone likes to hang out at Pop's place.

Yup. My life is perfect. I get to spend with my friends, and then it's my favourite part of the day... when Katie comes home and it's just the two of us again.

Hey, here's Katie now!

And she's brought me something. She's so great!

It's a It's a

ANOTHER DOG! OH NO!

Week 5

Lego Movie

Catch that Crook!

It was another beautiful day in LEGO city.

Two crooks thought it was the perfect day for a bank robbery. The bank's alarm rang out.

"Hurry up, Hank!" Butch shouted as he revved the engine.

"I'm moving as fast as I can," said Hank. "These gold bars are heavy!"

As soon as the gold was inside the car, Hank hit the gas.

"So long, LEGO city police," said Hank. "Good luck finding us in the forest!"

Meanwhile, the LEGO city forest police were hard at work.

"Keep your eyes open," the forest police chief said into his walkie-talkie. "I found out we have a couple of bank robbers in the forest!"

"I think I found them, Chief. Someone's hiding in this bush," the policeman responded. As he crept close, the bush moved.

The policeman ran up to the bush. "You're under arrest!" he shouted.

He found himself face-to-face with a

"BEAR!" he shouted as he ran away.

The bear was just as frightened. It took off in the other direction.

"I can't believe we pulled it off," said Hank. "They'll never find us."

"You spoke too soon," said Butch. "The forest is filled with police! They even have police dogs that can sniff us out in a second. You better hide that gold."

Hank hauled the gold outside.

"I have the perfect hiding place," he said. Hank put the gold into a beehive. "Nobody will mess with a bunch of buzzing bees."

Hank didn't know that there was one creature that didn't mind buzzing bees.

"Hey!" Hank shouted. "A bear is stealing our gold. He can't steal from us! We stole it first!"

The police dogs finally tracked down the bank robbers. But the two thieves were busy tracking down a thief of their own.

Hank and Butch chased the bear. The dogs chased Hank and Butch. And the forest police officers followed after the dogs. They all ran through the thick forest.

The bear darted into a dark cave.

"Come on, Hank!" said Butch. "We've got that bear trapped now."

Meanwhile, the chief grabbed the police officer's arm.

"Better wait here," said the chief. "They'll be back out."

"How do you know?" asked the policeman.

"Let's just say that I know better than to chase a bear into a dark cave," said the chief.

It wasn't long before Hank and Butch ran out of the cave.

"Help!" shouted the crooks. Several bears ran out after them.

"Arrest us! Lock us up!" pleaded Butch.

"Yeah, put us behind bars," agreed Hank. "Just save us from these bears!"

Back at the forest police station, the policeman locked up the two bank robbers. Outside, two of the bears licked honey from the gold bricks.

“Good job,” said the chief. “We’ll return the gold to the bank as soon as the bears finish with it.”

“looks like this was a sweet catch for all of us,” said the policeman.

Week 6

Charlie and the Chocolate Factory.

The Miracle

Charlie entered the shop and laid the damp fifty pence on the counter.

"One Wonka's Whipple-Scrumptious Fudgemallow Delight," he said, remembering how much he had loved the one he had on his birthday.

The man behind the counter looked fat and well-fed. He had big lips and fat cheeks and a very fat neck. The fat around his neck bulged out all around the top of his collar like a rubber ring.

He turned and reached behind him for the chocolate bar, then he turned back again and handed it to Charlie. Charlie grabbed it and quickly tore off the wrapper and took an enormous bite.

Then he took another ... and another ... and oh, the joy of being able to cram large pieces of something sweet and solid into one's mouth! The sheer blissful joy of being able to fill one's mouth with rich solid food!

"You look like you wanted that one, sonny," the shopkeeper said pleasantly.

Charlie nodded, his mouth bulging with chocolate. The shopkeeper put Charlie's change on the counter.

"Take it easy," he said. "It'll give you a tummy ache if you swallow it like that without chewing."

Charlie went on wolfing the chocolate. He couldn't stop. And in less than half a minute, the whole thing had disappeared down his throat. He was quite out of breath, but he felt marvellously, extraordinarily happy.

He reached out a hand to take the change. Then he paused. His eyes were just above the level of the counter. They were staring at the silver coins lying there.

The coins were all five penny pieces. There were nine of them altogether. Surely it wouldn't matter if he spent just one more ...

"I think," he said quietly, "I think ... I'll have just one more of those chocolate bars. The same kind as before, please."

"Why not?" the fat shopkeeper said, reaching behind him again and taking another Whipple-Scrumptious Fudgemallow Delight from the shelf. He laid it on the counter. Charlie picked it up and tore off the wrapper ... and suddenly ... from underneath the wrapper ... there came a brilliant flash of gold. Charlie's heart stood still.

"It's a Golden Ticket!" screamed the shopkeeper, leaping about a foot in the air.

"You've got a Golden Ticket! You've found the last Golden Ticket! Hey, would you believe it! Come and look at this, everybody! The kid's found Wonka's last Golden Ticket! There it is! It's right here in his hands!" It seemed as though the shopkeeper might be going to have a fit.

"In my shop, too!" he yelled. "He found it right here in my own little shop! Somebody call the newspapers quick and let them know! Watch out now, sonny! Don't tear it as you unwrap it!

That thing's precious!' In a few seconds, there was a crowd of about twenty people clustering around Charlie, and many more were pushing their way in from the street. Everybody wanted to get a look at the Golden Ticket and at the lucky finder.

"Where is it?' somebody shouted. "Hold it up so all of us can see it!" "There it is, there!" someone else shouted. "He's holding it in his hands! See the gold shining!" "How did he manage to find it, I'd like to know?" a large boy shouted angrily.

"Twenty bars a day I've been buying for weeks and weeks!" "Think of all the free stuff he'll be getting too!" another boy said enviously. 'A lifetime supply!' "He'll need it, the skinny little shrimp!" a girl said, laughing. Charlie hadn't moved. He hadn't even unwrapped the Golden Ticket from around the chocolate.

He was standing very still, holding it tightly with both hands while the crowd pushed and shouted all around him. He felt quite dizzy. There was a peculiar floating sensation coming over him, as though he were floating up in the air like a balloon. His feet didn't seem to be touching the ground at all.

He could hear his heart thumping away loudly somewhere in his throat. At that point, he became aware of a hand resting lightly on his shoulder, and when he looked up, he saw a tall man standing over him.

"Listen,' the man whispered. "I'll buy it from you. I'll give you fifty pounds. How about it, eh? And I'll give you a new bicycle as well. Okay?"

"Are you crazy?" shouted a woman who was standing equally close. "Why, I'd give him two hundred pounds for that ticket! You want to sell that ticket for two hundred pounds, young man?"

"That's quite enough of that!" the fat shopkeeper shouted, pushing his way through the crowd and taking Charlie firmly by the arm. "Leave the kid alone, will you! Make way there! Let him out!" And to Charlie, as he led him to the door, he whispered, "Don't you let anybody have it! Take it straight home, quickly, before you lose it! Run all the way and don't stop till you get there, you understand?" Charlie nodded.

"You know something,' the fat shopkeeper said, pausing a moment and smiling at Charlie, "I have a feeling you needed a break like this. I'm awfully glad you got it. Good luck to you, sonny.'

"Thankyou,' Charlie said, and off he went, running through the snow as fast as his legs would go. And as he flew past Mr Willy Wonka's factory, he turned and waved at it and sang out, "I'll be seeing you! I'll be seeing you soon!" And five minutes later he arrived at his own home.

Half Term

Week 7– Individual banded reading

Week 8

The Greatest Showman

Phineas Taylor Barnum is a young boy in the 1980's who works for his father who is a clothes tailor. One day they visit the house of Mr. Hallett and his daughter Charity. P.T Barnum makes Charity laugh and she spits her tea across the room. Charity's father is really angry about this and hits P.T Barnum across the face, forbidding him to ever speak to Charity again.

Charity is then sent to boarding school and sends letters to P.T Barnum. They develop a great friendship. Once she is old enough and leaves school they decide to get married.

Years later, Barnum is working for a trading company until his boss tells everyone that they are shutting the company down due to bankruptcy after their trading vessels have sunk to the bottom of the ocean. Barnum goes home to Charity and their daughters Caroline and Helen. He brings home a spinning lamp, or "wishing machine", for Caroline's birthday. Charity and the girls all make wishes, and Barnum hatches an idea.

Barnum goes to the bank for a $10,000 loan and uses the deed to the (sunken) trading vessels as collateral. With the money, he opens up a museum devoted to oddities, because he thinks people are fascinated with things like that. No one likes the museum, so no one visits it.

The girls suggest that their dad should use real things in his museum. Barnum then goes around town searching for unique individuals. Among them are a dwarf named Charles Stratton, a bearded woman named Lettie Lutz, an obese man called Lord of Leeds, a hair-covered man referred to as Dog Boy, and an 8-foot tall man. Together they put on a show called a circus.

The circus starts to bring in money, leading Barnum to move his family into a luxurious mansion, as well as being able to put Caroline in a ballet school. However, the other girls mock her for being part of a circus family.

The circus troupe is invited to England to meet Queen Victoria. Here, Barnum meets noted opera singer Jenny Lind, and they invite her to perform for the show so that she may become known worldwide.

Barnum goes on tour with Jenny whilst protestors gather outside the circus to harass the troupe for their physical differences. Barnum returns home from his tour and greets his family when he overhears about the fire. He runs toward it just as the flames consume the whole circus building.

Barnum just sits outside the remains of the circus.

Barnum plucks up the courage to restart the show in a tent with circus animals and the rest of the troupe. Audiences turn out in mass. The circus is a great success.

Week 9

Star Wars

Life on Jakku

Rey was left behind by her ship on the planet of Jakku when she was very young. She spends her days salvaging materials from the wreckage of Imperial ships to trade for food. She makes her home in a fallen Imperial walker and sleeps in a simple hammock.

Roodown

Like Rey, many Jakku residents scour the desert looking for valuable debris to sell. Competition is fierce. "Crusher" Roodown lost his arms to someone when he was trying to sell things to a rival. He replaced his arms with robot arms which made him stronger.

Survival Instincts

Rey explores the desert in a vehicle that she built herself. It may look like junk, but its turbocharged engine reaches incredible speeds while navigating Jakku's scorched sands. Rey's survival instinct is strong. Each day, she must avoid rival scavengers in hot conditions.

Scavenging

Rey walks across the desert for miles in order to find the most valuable scrap. She keeps it and uses the parts to repair her ship. Some parts she keeps and some she trades for food.

Droid Rescue

When Rey spots a droid trapped in a net, she doesn't hesitate in racing to help. Little does Rey know that this will begin a chain of events that will change her life forever. Rey is able to understand droid speak and learns that the droid she saved is known as BB-8.

Close Call

One day, Rey and BB-8 meet a man at the market called Finn. Then, from out of nowhere, Stormtroopers open fire at them and the new friends need to escape and take cover – fast! But outrunning Stormtroopers' blasts is impossible. They will need a ship to escape. Rey, Finn and BB-8 scramble into the Millennium Falcon, a light fighter-ship. Rey jumps into the driver's seat and Finn operated the gunner chair. Together, they fight off the enemy ships and escape.

Maz's Castle

Once they have escaped they seek protection in Maz's Castle. When they arrive Rey is handed the Skywalker lightsabre. When she received it she experiences a frightening vision. While she may not be a Jedi, Rey has an undeniable connection to the force.

Rey meets Luke

Rey continues to travel across Jakku, with the Skywalker lightsabre in her bag. She wants to return it to its owner. Rey uses the Millennium Falcon to reach a temple where Luke Skywalker is staying. There, the lightsabre is returned to its previous Jedi owner; Luke Skywalker.

Week 10

Toy Story

Andy was a very lucky boy. He had lots of different toys. But his favourite toy was a cowboy named Woody. Andy loved to play with Woody. But there was something Andy didn't know about Woody and the other toys. When Andy wasn't around, the toys have a life of their own. They moved. They talked. They laughed and they had adventures.

One year, Andy got a brand-new toy for his birthday – a space ranger named Buzz Lightyear! Buzz had flashing lasers, gadgets and even wings. Buzz thought he was a real space ranger. He even thought he could fly! Woody tried to tell Buzz that he was actually a toy. But Buzz wouldn't listen.

Soon Buzz became Andy's new favourite toy. This made Woody very sad. One day, Andy was going to Pizza Planet. His mum told him he could bring just one toy. Woody wanted to go! He tried to shove Buzz aside. But he accidentally pushed Buzz out of Andy's bedroom window instead. Whoops! Woody got to go with Andy, but the other toys were very upset with Woody's actions.

Woody felt bad until Buzz showed up in the car, too! Buzz was angry with Woody. They two began to fight. When the car stopped at the gas station, they tumbled out the back door.

Oh no! Andy and his mum drove off to Pizza Planet leaving Buzz and Woody behind. They had become lost toys! And Andy's family were moving to a new home in two days.

Just then, Woody spotted a Pizza Planet truck. Woody told Buzz the truck was a spaceship, and they hopped on board.

Buzz insisted on riding up front. Luckily, a stack of pizza boxes kept him hidden from the driver.

At Pizza planet, Buzz climbed into a claw game filled with toy aliens. Buzz thought the game was a spaceship. Woody tried to get Buzz out – but soon they were both trapped!

Oh no! Andy's mean neighbour Sid captured Buzz and Woody from the toy machine. Woody and Buzz were taken back Sid's room which was full of mutant toys. He had created them by combining different toy parts in strange ways... and now he had evil plans for Buzz and Woody! They had to escape.

Buzz tried to fly out of Sid's house, but he fell. He realised that Woody was right – he wasn't a real space ranger. He was only a toy. Sid strapped a rocket to Buzz. He planned to blow Buzz to pieces! Buzz and Woody had to work together if they were going to escape. But Buzz didn't want to escape. He felt sad because he wasn't a real space ranger. Woody helped Buzz understand that, Andy loved him and that being a toy was very important. And before they knew Buzz and Woody had become the best of friends.

Woody came up with a plan to save Buzz. He asked Sid's toys to help. Just as Sid was about to blow Buzz up, Woody and the mutant toys came to life. Sid was terrified – he screamed and ran away!

Buzz and Woody were thrilled! So were Sid's toys. They knew that Sid would never torture them again. Now Buzz and Woody were free to go back to Andy. But Andy's moving van was already pulling away from his house. They had to catch up to it!

Buzz and Woody ran and ran with Sid's mean dog, Scud, chasing them. Luckily, RC the racing car, came out of the moving van to give Buzz and Woody a ride. They thought they were home free- until RC's batteries began to run out.

They then remembered that Buzz still had Sid's rocket strapped to his back. They used that to launch through the air and into the car. WHOOSH! Buzz and Woody glided through the car and plopped down next to Andy – right where they belonged.

Week 11

How to Train Your Dragon

On the island of Berk there lives a group of Vikings. Dragons steal livestock from them and naturally the Vikings want to kill the dragons. Hiccup, who is the son of chief Viking, is physically weak compared to Vikings, but has talent in building mechanical tools and in understanding Dragons.

One day when dragons attack livestock and the Vikings fight the Dragons, Hiccup by fluke hits Black Fury with a rope which ties its legs, Black Fury is a rare dragon which no one has seen because of its speed.

Black fury goes into the forest and crashes into trees. When Hiccup says he got the Black Fury everybody laughs at him. The next day when Hiccup goes into the forest & finds Black Fury, he tries to kill it but he couldn't, instead he cuts the rope and the dragon escapes after pushing him down and starring at him.

The Vikings train their next generation of young warriors and one of them is Astrid a tough Viking girl. Hiccup, goes to forest again and sees that black fury is unable to fly because half of its tail wing is cut.

The next day he takes a fish to Black Fury and after some time manages to touch it by giving the fish as food. The next day Hiccup takes more fish and makes black fury his friend.

He makes an artificial tail feather and ties it to Black Fury and suddenly Black Fury flies off with Hiccup on his back! While flying he realizes Black Fury is unable to control the artificial tail and makes a gear to control the tail. While doing all this he learns a lot about Black Fury and uses it to deceive the dragons in his training camp. When the dragons are released to attack Vikings, Hiccup shows grass and the dragons act as he wishes, he also tricks a dragon with laser light to get back into prison and scares a two headed dragon by showing a snake.

Astrid gets upset as Hiccup starts to win the training camp and one day follows Hiccup to forest and finds Hiccup training Black Fury. She tries to run back to village but Black Fury grabs her, Hiccup tries to convince her but she won't listen. Black Fury rides fast upside down, so Astrid holds Hiccup and says sorry - when she says sorry, Black fury slows down. Suddenly they accidentally they get caught in the middle of hundreds of dragons moving towards a mountain where a humungous dragon lives. He is 500 times larger than normal dragons and eats all the food which the smaller dragons bring. Black fury quickly takes them back to their village.

In training camp Hiccup tries to deceive a fierce dragon but his father attacks the dragon and black fury comes and rescues Hiccup, but the Vikings attack black fury and capture it, Hiccup tries to convince his father but he won't listen.

Hiccup accidentally says Black fury knows the location of nest and his father ties black fury and takes it to the nest.

After his father and Vikings leave to nest, Hiccup trains the dragons in camp and his friends to control the dragon with Astrid.

When the Vikings attack the nest the large dragon comes out and the Vikings realize it's not possible to kill it as they are very small, during this black fury gets submerged in water and Hiccup arrives to the location and tries to save black fury but drowns, his father saves Hiccup and releases black fury.

Hiccup then rides on black fury attacking the large dragon and making it angry, they fly up into the sky the large dragon follows black fury and in dark black fury attacks the large dragons wings creating holes and when they fly down the large dragon falls from sky and dies, in the fire of large dragon black fury's tail catches fire and both fall, everyone thinks Hiccup is dead, Black fury saves him but Hiccup loses one leg. When he wakes up in his village black fury is in his room and when he walks out the Vikings will be flying on dragons.

Week 12

Frozen

Princess Elsa and Princess Anna of Arendelle were little girls and the best of friends. Anna was one of the only people who knew Elsa's secret - Elsa had the power to make snow and ice! One night, Elsa filled an empty ballroom with snow so the sisters could play together.

As they played, Elsa lost control and accidentally hit Anna with a blast of icy magic. Anna was badly hurt. Her parents took them to the mountain trolls to ask for help. The trolls said that Anna could be saved but she would need to forget about Elsa's magic powers. The family shut the doors of the castle and hid themselves away.

Years later, the parents had gone and Elsa was made queen of Arendelle. Anna met Prince Hans and they wanted to get married. This upset Elsa and she lost control shooting ice from her hands. Everyone was shocked by this and Elsa ran away.

Anna felt horrible and went to search for her sister to apologise. Elsa's powers had caused a big snow storm. On her way, Anna met an ice harvester named Kristoff and his reindeer, Sven. They continued their journey together. They met an enchanted snowman named Olaf who Elsa had made for company.

Anna found Elsa and tried to persuade her to come home but Elsa had made her own ice castle to live in and was happy. The sisters began to argue and a blast of ice came from Elsa, hitting Anna in the chest. Anna ran to Kristoff who took her to the trolls to be healed. The trolls told Anna that only an act of true love could save her.

Anna arrived back in Arendelle, she asked Hans to save her with a kiss and he refused, he had only pretended to love her. He wanted to take over Arendelle by getting rid of Anna and Elsa. Hans left Anna alone shivering. Olaf found her and tried to warm her but Anna was getting weaker.

Olaf looked out the window and saw Kristoff riding towards the castle. Kristoff was the one who Anna needed to kiss. In the meantime, Elsa was returning to Arendelle to check her sister was alright. Hans caught her on the way in and told her Anna had died. He was lying to upset Elsa. Hans then pulled out a sword and tried to kill Elsa. Anna saw this and put herself between Elsa and the sword. Just then, Anna turned to ice, breaking the sword and saving Elsa. Elsa hugged her sister as Hans ran off. Just then, Anna began to thaw. Anna's act of true love had saved her.

Anna's love for Elsa had saved both of them and the kingdom. The two sisters were best friends again and summer had returned to Arendelle. Elsa even made Olaf a little snow cloud to keep him from melting. Elsa had a surprise for Anna; the castle gates were wide open. Now everything was the way it was supposed to be.